

Ohio Administrative Code

Rule 123-2-07 Notice to persons asked to supply personal information.

Effective: September 1, 1981

(A) Any person asked to supply personal information for a personal information system shall be advised whether he is legally required, or may refuse, to supply the information. A statement to this effect shall be provided with any written or verbal request for information and included on all forms.

(B) Any person asked to supply personal information that will be placed in an interconnected or combined system shall be provided with information relevant to the system, including the identity of the other agencies or organizations that have access to the personal information in the system.

(C) If personal information is requested from the same source on a continuous basis, the person may be advised, as required under paragraph (A) or (B) of this rule, one time, in writing, rather than prior to each request.
