(D) Requirements for service delivery

(1) Remote support is intended to address an individual's assessed needs in a manner that promotes autonomy and minimizes dependence on paid support staff and should be explored prior to authorizing services that may be more intrusive, including homemaker/personal care or participant-directed homemaker/personal care. When exploring remote support, an individual and the individual's team will:

(a) Consider whether assistive technology may be a viable alternative to remote support, adequate to meet the individual's needs; and

(b) Assess whether remote support is sufficient to ensure the individual's health and welfare.

(2) When an individual and the individual's team determine to proceed with remote support, the individual's service and support administrator will obtain written consent from the individual and each person who lives with the individual or the person's guardian, as applicable.

(a) The remote support provider will supply necessary information to the service and support administrator. The form used to obtain written consent will include a description of what remote support entails, such as whether the remote support staff will observe activities and/or listen to conversations in the residence, where specifically in the residence the remote support will take place, and whether recordings will be made.

(b) The service and support administrator will maintain a copy of each signed consent form with the individual service plan and provide a copy of each signed consent form to the remote support provider.

(c) The remote support provider will ensure remote support staff have access to the signed consent form for each individual served.

(3) Remote support will be provided pursuant to an individual service plan that conforms to the requirements of rule 5123-4-02 of the Administrative Code. The individual service plan of an individual receiving remote support will include:

(a) Typical days of the week and times of the day remote support will be provided.

(b) The assessed need and the equipment or technology used to address the need.

(c) The arrangement for backup support including:

(i) Whether backup support is paid or unpaid;

(iii) The amount of time deemed reasonable for backup support to arrive at the individual's residence based on the individual's assessed needs.

(d) The protocol to be followed should the individual request that the equipment or technology used for provision of remote support be deactivated.

(4) Remote support will be provided in real time, not via a recording, by awake staff at a monitoring base. While remote support is being provided, the remote support staff will not have duties other than to provide remote support. The remote support provider will have sufficient staff on hand at the monitoring base to ensure the health and welfare of individuals receiving remote support.

(5) Remote support equipment that involves the use of audio and/or video technology that permits remote support staff to view activities and/or listen to conversations in the residence and/or record activities or conversations in the residence, will not be activated by the provider when the provider is not being paid to provide services.

(6) The remote support provider will provide initial and ongoing training to remote support staff to ensure they know how to use the monitoring base system and the equipment or technology used to monitor individuals receiving remote support.

(7) The remote support provider will maintain an up-to-date list of addresses of all monitoring bases.

A monitoring base:

(a) Will be located in a private area that ensures the privacy of the individual being served.

(b) Will not be located at the residence of any person who receives home and community-based services or in a car or other vehicle, whether moving or parked.

(8) The remote support provider will ensure the monitoring base is operated in accordance with this rule. When the monitoring base is located in the residence of remote support staff, the remote support provider will ensure remote support staff understand that the residence may be visited during compliance reviews.

(9) The remote support provider will have a backup power system (such as battery power and/or generator) in place at every monitoring base in the event of electrical outages, as well as other backup systems and additional safeguards (such as redundant internet connections and network security) as necessary to ensure compliance with paragraphs (D)(10) and (D)(11) of this rule.

(10) The remote support provider will comply with all federal, state, and local regulations that apply to the operation of its business or trade, including but not limited to, the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, 18 U.S.C. section 2510 to section 2522, and section 2933.52 of the Revised Code.

(11) A secure network system requiring authentication, authorization, and encryption of data that complies with 45 C.F.R. section 164.102 to section 164.534 will be in place to ensure access to computer, video, audio, sensor, and written information is limited to authorized persons.

(12) The remote support provider will have an effective system for notifying emergency personnel such as police, fire, emergency medical services, and psychiatric crisis response entities.

(13) The remote support provider will provide an individual who receives remote support with initial and ongoing training on how to use the equipment and technology that comprise the remote support system as specified in the individual service plan.

(14) The remote support provider will develop and implement written protocols for verification and testing to ensure the equipment and technology used to provide remote support are working.

(15) If a known or reported emergency involving an individual arises, the remote support staff will immediately assess the situation and call emergency personnel first, if that is deemed necessary, and then contact the backup support. The remote support staff will stay engaged with the individual during an emergency until emergency personnel or the backup support person arrives at the individual's residence.

(16) If a major unusual incident as defined in rule 5123-17-02 of the Administrative Code occurs while an individual is being monitored, the remote support provider will retain or ensure the retention of any video and/or audio recordings and any sensor and written information pertaining to the incident for at least seven years from the date of the incident.

(4) Medicaid identification number of individual receiving service.

(5) Name of provider.

(6) Provider identifier/contract number.

(7) When backup support is needed at an individual's residence:

(a) Date and time remote support staff contact backup support.

(b) Date and time backup support arrives and departs the individual's residence, as applicable.

(8) Written or electronic signature of the person delivering the service, or initials of the person delivering the service if a signature and corresponding initials are on file with the provider.

(9) Number of units of the delivered service per calendar day.

(10) Group size in which the service was provided.

(11) Description and details of the services delivered that directly relate to the services specified in the approved individual service plan as the services to be provided.

(F) Payment standards

(1) The billing unit, service codes, and payment rates for remote support are contained in the appendix to this rule.

(2) There are two payment rates for remote support, which differ depending on whether an individual is receiving remote support with unpaid backup support or with paid backup support.

(a) When an individual receives remote support with unpaid backup support, the remote support provider will bill for the remote support.

(b) When an individual receives remote support with paid backup support, the homemaker/personal care provider providing the backup support will bill for the remote support and provide the remote support directly or through a contract with a remote support provider that meets the requirements of this rule. In the event the remote support staff contact the paid backup support homemaker/personal care provider to request emergency or in-person assistance, the paid backup support person's time will be billed as homemaker/personal care or participant-directed homemaker/personal care, as applicable.

(3) When remote support is provided to multiple individuals who live in the same residence, the payment rate for remote support is divided equally among the individuals concurrently receiving remote support.
