

Ohio Revised Code

Section 1705.27 [Repealed Effective 2/11/2022 - See R.C. 1706.83] Bylaws.

Effective: July 1, 1994

Legislation: Senate Bill 74

The members of a limited liability company or, if and to the extent authorized by its members, the managers of a limited liability company may adopt bylaws that are not inconsistent with the articles of organization or the operating agreement and that are for the regulation of the members, the managers, or any other matter affecting the management of the company, including, but not limited to, books and records of account, minutes of proceedings, meetings, requirements for notices of meetings, computation of time for notice, method of giving notice, quorum requirements, written action in lieu of a meeting, waiver of notice, proxies, and officers.
